Wildlife species observable during the trek include Himalayan Tahrs, snow leopards, Danfe, etc. They are unique to the region and are most endangered. Spring and Autumn are when they remain most active. It is also the best time for the trek as it comes with clear weather and favorable trekking conditions.

Moreover, the Everest region is a cultural delight as you can find numerous small Sherpa settlements along the trail. Besides, Bhotia, Tamang, and other ethnic communities with separate languages also reside in the region. You can go on a complete cultural exploration and experience their rural lifestyle. A guide will accompany you to translate and give you some local insights.

gorgeous mountain looks like an Island covered in snow, it is popularly known as an Island peak while the locals call it "Imja Tse." It is a good practice ground for Mt.
